

Heavy Rains Can Avert Danger

Power Shortage Ahead
Warn Company Officials

Remember the power crisis in Vancouver late last winter when lack of precipitation lowered the B.C. Electric Company's reservoir?

And remember the trouble in Ontario a year ago when power had to be rationed because of low water levels?

Southern Alberta is being brought into a similar crisis, although no real hardship will be worked if heavy rains come soon.

Most were very much concerned about the situation that is developing," G. A. Gaherty, President of Calgary Power Ltd., told the Albertan this week.

Calgary power, which serves Calgary and much of southern and central Alberta, gets most of its power from the Bow River system above Calgary. All of its five hydro plants are dependent upon mountain run-off for their water. Last winter the snowfall was lighter than normal, and since then precipitation in the mountains has been exceedingly light. The Calgary figures, 474 inches since April 1 compared with a normal of 515 inches, suggests how serious the drought has been in the mountains that water the Bow and its tributaries. Actually the flow of the Bow River has been lower this year than it was even known to be before, according to Mr. Gaherty and the Dominion water and power bureau.

On the other hand, the "load" of Calgary Power is constantly increasing. More farm power is being hooked up every day. New industries by the dozens are demanding and getting large supplies of electricity.

The Calgary project, which will start turning out power in 18 months, will almost double the company's output but it won't have its storage in use until the next spring. In the meantime the water shortage is greatly aggravating what would have been a serious crisis even with normal river flow.

The company hopes to get through the winter with no serious power rationing, but only the weatherman will decide.

In the meantime all possible steam-generated electricity is being purchased. The company is concluding a new agreement with Edmonton to buy large new municipal steam plant, whereby it will obtain about 90,000 kilowatts in the next year at a cost of about half a million dollars. Further, Calgary Power is buying from Canadian Utilities, steam plant and from the Lethbridge and Regina systems, the 14,000-kilowatt steam plant in Calgary and is currently converting it from half coal, half gas, to all gas.

The agreement with Edmonton, incidentally, is reciprocal. Calgary Power agrees to supply Edmonton in emergencies. During the last emergency, several weeks ago, when the Edmonton system was suddenly cut off, Calgary Power met its commitment, although it had to cut down the nitrogen plant at Calgary from 7,500 kilowatt to do so.

Although every drop of water in the Bow is being carefully conserved and utilized in this emergency, it will be recalled that even with low winter precipitation and light spring runoff, the Bow was flowing high and fast in May, with much of the runoff going right past the several plants and serving no useful purpose anywhere on its flight to Hudson Bay. If more of that water could have been conserved, the shortage would not be so serious now.

It can be conserved in two ways. One is by protecting and improving the natural covering where the winter snow falls, so the moisture is released slowly throughout the whole of the summer. The other method, more expensive, is to build reservoirs. The Spray project will provide much more additional reservoir space.

If it gains a good deal this fall Calgary Power will get through the winter. And if it gets through this winter and the next, the crisis will probably be over, for at least several years.

Depression Preventable
States U.S. Economist

The United States is not in a depression today and need not fear one if available means are used to prevent it, declares W. Walter Williams, chairman of the Committee for Economic Development. In The Reader's Digest for October.

American economy is in a dip, Williams concedes, and though the dip is really a "wholesale adjustment from boom to normal," there is nothing "wholesome" in the process. At least 3,775,000 unemployed—a total of a million and a half greater than a year ago.

Amulance
Dance Is Big Success

Members of the St. John Ambulance First Aid Classes sponsored a very successful dance Tuesday evening, Sept. 27th with the ladies of the Hospital Auxiliary serving lunch.

Music was supplied by the "Swingers" with Mr. Humphries as floor manager.

The door prize a crisp new $5.00 bill was won by Miss Vivian Stockton. Winners of the spot dances were Miss Margaret O'Connor, Mr. Elmer Iverson; Mrs. J. E. Bradley and Capt. Short.

Proceeds from the dance were turned in to the St. John Ambulance Hospital, Provincial Headquarters, 2643 18th Street, Edmonton.

The following is a list of the appreciation:

Thank you very much for your letter of September 28th addressed to the St. John Ambulance Hospital, 2643 18th Street, Edmonton.

Co-operation Needed To Keep P.M.C. Ass'n Alive

Humor has it that anyone of our war-born organizations in the town is being asked to contribute to the P.M.C. Ass'n. The P.M.C. Ass'n. has been with us for several years, ever since it was decided that a covered arena would be a useful and lasting memorial to the boys and girls from the area who did not return from World War II.

For the first two or three years of its life it was a very active organization which almost did the impossible in that for once the efforts of most of the town's numerous small organizations in the area were concentrated on one project. Most of us remember when every dance and carnival poster bore the words "Proceeds for the P.M.C. Ass'n."

During the past two years interest in the organization has lagged badly and since the arena was erected it has been as dead as the proverbial door-nail. Meetings have been poorly attended and a lot of the people who were, very keen two years ago never bother to turn up at all now. It certainly won't take a very hard shove to put it out of existence all together.

But we must save ourselves whether or not it should end now. After all the first unit of our centre isn't even finished yet and knowing our town from every back we're just a bit afraid that what we have built will probably remain in its present primitive stage unless some organization keeps actively prodding the Town Fathers. We also remember that the town's operation of the original covered rink left much to be desired. It would be a shame to let all that has been done to us in the way of a First War Memorial on Main Street show you just what can happen when a memorial is handed over to a group of people who aren't interested in it.

HEATH

Miss M. Sweeney spent the weekend visiting with her parents at Gunn, Alta.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mills (nee Rosemary Withnell) of the Aspen district who were married in St. Mary's Church in Edmonton on Friday last week.

C.N.R. PREPARING TO CHANGE
FROM COAL TO OIL HERE

Work is underway at the local C.N.R. yards in preparation for changing from coal to oil for locomotive fuel.

Just how soon the change will be made we cannot be sure at the moment, but gangs are busy laying some extra trackwork, and doing the work necessary to service locomotives with the new fuel.

Locomotives are now being fueled with oil at Edmonton and some have made the run down here on that fuel, but to date it has been impossible to refuel them at this point.

FIRE AT THE MEYER
HOME DOES LITTLE DAMAGE

Thought to be hooked up with the threatening lights which have been received by Carl and Meyer, the proprietors of the Lockyer Plank, a fire occurred at the Meyer home on Friday afternoon last. No one was in the home at the time. Apparently the intruder entered the home early in the afternoon and set fire to the curtains of one of the windows. Fortunately the fire did not spread for it was unnoticed, and the first to discover it was Mrs. Meyer who called the fire department.

Big Time Assured For All Who Come

Carnival Planned By Local Board of Trade

With the coming of November 11th, Remembrance Day, the local Legion is going all out to make the day one to be remembered in Wainwright. Already a large number of wreaths have been ordered by the branch, most of which are already sold, but there will be a few extra, and any organization or place of business wishing to obtain a wreath may do so by getting in contact with one of the committee, D. E. Walker, K. Stowell, J. Smith or Ted Wilson.

Poppy Day

Many citizens may not know exactly what the poppy and wreath money is used for, and we have heard it said that many wrong impressions are created here. Some even feel that the money is being used by local branches of Poppies, wreaths and poppy emblems are manufactured by the Department of Veterans Affairs in sheltered employment workshops under the registered trade mark "Veterans Industries Ltd." Two major centres are maintained by the Department, viz: Toronto and Montreal, while a limited amount of assembly, packing and shipping is done in the Red Cross Workshop, Victoria, under the direction of the Victoria Branch of the Red Cross Society.

Sew and So Club

September meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Mildred Oldham, with fifteen members answering the "Roll Call", being your "Birthdays and Flowers". The opening song "The More We Get Together" by Mrs. Mary "Pace" supplied the programme for the meeting, although she was not present. Glad you are feeling fine again Muriel.

Miss Grace Horbay, District Home Economist from Vegreville demonstrated "Treasure Cooking" which was thoroughly enjoyed and very beneficial to us all. Miss Kerna of the Vermilion School of Agriculture accompanied Miss Horbay. These were a very interesting account of the Vermilion Agricultural School. Miss Horbay is coming to Wainwright next meeting to demonstrate "Sewing".

St. Thomas W.A.

The Wainwright Branch of St. Thomas W.A. met Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Three visitors were present and three members. Discussion was chiefly of Bales to be made up for two missionary families on the books and leadership for the G.A. Miss Pack and Mrs. Bertha Girard kindly consented to get the girls organized for another season. The sponsorship of the Cubes is being withdrawn by the Park Branch for this season.

Next meeting will be held Tuesday, October 11 at 8 p.m., an election of officers will be called. Requesting all members to turn out and enjoy your selves.

PROTECT YOUR CHILDREN

Youngsters are intensely curious and love nothing better than to experiment with knives, razor blades, pin picks, matches and rat poison. Because of this very natural curiosity, parents should see that such dangerous items are kept out of reach or, better still, locked away. Blunt, small objects with rounded ends are best for children's cut-out games. Safety in the home is a very important matter. Mere accidents occur in the home more than any place else.

A house is no home unless it contains food and fire for the mind as well as for the body.

DEVALUATION

It is with fear and trembling that we enter into any discussion of the devaluation question. A question that keeps the economists guessing naturally poses a rather difficult problem for the editor of a weekly newspaper, and any comments he may make must be made with considerable care, and no little reserve. However it is a question which must be discussed and one which is to have a very important effect upon our future. In the first place, the action which was taken was not of a precipitate nature. It was taken only after a great deal of thought and no doubt after many consultations. The British Labor government could not have afforded to take such action without a reasonable assurance from those who should know, that it was the proper and advisable course to take. Their need for utmost caution in this regard springs from two basic facts. The first is the serious condition in which Britain finds herself at this time — not so desperate that any change would be an improvement — but so desperate enough that it was no time for experimentation. The second was that the Labor government itself is on rather insecure ground, and its tenure of office could be easily terminated by a gross error.

However, the success of the whole plan appears to rest on a number of presumptions which may or may not work out in the desirable way. Primarily it makes exporting easier and importing more difficult, which might be expected to result in an increase in exports and a decrease in imports, and thus bring about a more favorable trade balance. But this favorable conclusion can only be obtained with the co-operation of both those in Britain and those in the countries which import British goods. Co-operation from those in Britain by maintaining their sale prices at the same pound Sterling level as before the devaluation and co-operation of those in countries which import from Britain in not raising tariff barriers or placing other obstacles in the way of British goods.

Reports to date indicate that the first form of co-operation may not be forthcoming in its fullest sense. British manufacturers have already indicated that there may be a move to raise their prices so that the dollar value of their products will remain much the same as previously. It is well known that fluctuations of the price of goods have a very pronounced bearing on the financial standing of any firm which has substantial stocks on hand or on consignment, and moreover it may well be anticipated that the increased living costs brought about by the devaluation of the pound, may result in a widespread demand for increased wages by the British worker.

Any such raising of wages and prices in Britain would negate the effectiveness of the whole plan, which aims at lowering of export prices when measured in dollars, and a consequent increase in the demand for British goods.

While no moves have actually been made to reduce the importing of goods from Britain by Canada or the United States, there is every possibility that producers of goods in these countries, who are in competition with Britain may bring pressure to bear on their governments, asking that higher tariffs be imposed or antidumping laws invoked. Their action too, will be founded on the contention that the exporting of large quantities of British goods will result in lowered employment on this side of the water.

We still cling to the opinion that if Britain had lots of the goods we want available for sale at prices we want to pay she could do a lot more business. We also hang to the old fashioned idea that it is pretty hard to produce less goods and enjoy more. Somebody has got to pay the increased prices that result from restricted production, and all too likely it will be us... the little men... the final consumer.

Having had to work for ourselves for many years, we must admit that we haven't much sympathy with five day weeks and production limits as are now insisted on by Labor Unions on both sides of the water. Very few of our readers could progress very far along the road to prosperity if they limited themselves to a forty hour week, and had a ceiling on their daily production, and to us it seems astonishing that a country in the desperate economic plight that Britain is in today, should find her working men insisting on their "rights," to the extent that they do.

It seems to us that a little more of the pioneer (or wartime) spirit, of getting done what has to be done without insisting too much on ones rights, would prove just about as effective in remedying the British problem as dangerous monetary experiments.

A compliment is like a whiff of perfume: it should be inhaled, not swallowed.—Jassemr Arthur Howell.

HERE, HERE

Under heading "Hand the Women a Blue Ribbon" The Camrose Canadian comes out with the following: "Along comes the Calgary Albertan this week with an editorial on the raging controversy whether men or women are the better cooks. As the late Will Rogers might say: 'we only know by where we have eaten!' A year ago the writer of this column charged that commercial cooking in Canada was at generally low level. Many of the big hotels and dining car cooks run a very poor second to the average Canadian housewife when it comes to serving up a tasty meal. Maybe there are limitations to the possibilities in commercial cooking that we don't know about. On the other hand what might just suit us would not suit a couple next to us. Take the matter of toast. We'd shoot our wife of she happened to get up some morning and got our breakfast and offered us a helping of toast like as was served at a big resort hotel where we recently ate. Just a little item, but how vitally important to the success of the meal! Yes, we'll string along with the gals in the kitchen, even if they ain't no geniuses."

BUYING BLINDFOLD

The tentative proposal that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation should double its license fee to a charge of $500 a year is not meeting with a wildly enthusiastic response. This is not so much because of the proposed $2.50 addition levy but rather on account of the feeling that a rather nebulous corporation with overly arbitrary powers and equally arbitrary policies is proposing to levy an additional tax without giving anything but the sketchiest explanation, and without our having any say in the matter. We are reacting to that as free men normally react to taxation without representation. For, while the C.B.C. is a servant of the public interest, it is singularly free from anything but the most general control, direction or supervision.

The C.B.C., in its best bureaucratic manner, apparently proposes to determine what we want, what we shall have, and what we shall pay for it, and short of open revolt, there is very little we can do about it. If the price of other commercial products gets out of line, we have the right to abstain from buying, or we can switch to some other comparable product and so are able to bring pressure to bear on producer and distributor. Not so with the C.B.C. There are other comparable products to which we may turn—those of the independent broadcasters, or of stations across the line. But, though we never listen to a C.B.C. broadcast, we still have to pay for it or face the possibility of being halted into court as a debtor for a product that we have neither bought nor used.

As many do not like this policy, they incline to pay only on demand, with the result that only the most easily cornered by the millions of this almost perfect bureaucracy pay the tax for the whole. Even if the tax itself were sound, the unfairness in its collection makes it of dubious merit. But even those who do submit to it still feel that an arbitrary and unexplained increase in a little "too bureaucratic" When seeking new capital, other industries submit a balance sheet showing how the original capital was used and what it is proposed to do with the new. The C.B.C. does not present sufficient information for the public to determine whether the investment is sound or in the public interest. All the sources of revenue on which the independent companies must subsist, and apparently do quite satisfactorily, are open to the C.B.C. plus the substantial item of its tax on the public which it shares with no one. When doubling this impost is proposed, we feel that the public is on unassailable grounds in demanding more information before it buys.

of which tends to emphasize the recent words of the local School Board in requesting closer police supervision of drivers particularly in the vicinity of the schools, and a little more restraint on the part of car and truck drivers themselves when driving in town.

This is all very well, but there is an other side to the picture in our humble opinion the parents who allow their children to play on the streets, particularly on that lovely stretch of sand known as Sixth Avenue—and who turn the apple of their eye loose on a new bicycle without giving him the vaguest idea that he has now become a "vehicle" and must obey certain traffic regulations, are just asking for a nice big hospital bill or a very sad trip about a mile and a half south east of town.

A child running into the street in front of a car or lying on the street playing in the sand doesn't give a driver a chance no matter how carefully he drives. Those kids who are barely able to navigate a bike and who persist in riding 3 or 4 abreast across, around and against all traffic are begging for the one way ride mentioned above. And the herds of children streaming in all directions as school lets out, without the slightest sign of direction or supervision, are enough to make any driver turn grey.

Granted the easiest way out is to blame the motorist and keep him off the streets—that would be a good idea with a couple of the local speed kings we could mention. But as parents and citizens we all have a greater responsibility in protecting our own children both at home and in school. A few simple pointers would be as follows: DON'T let your children play in the streets.

DON'T let your children ride a bicycle until you have taught them the rules of the road and are sure they'll obey them.

DON'T let them ride their bikes at night unless equipped with lights and reflectors.

DO insist that School Patrols be organized to help the school rush problem.

DO take time to educate your children regarding the dangers of traffic.

DO, if you're a driver, play it safe and take it easy. We would also recommend a few more dollars into the town coffers from traffic tickets for speeders, and an annual license for all bicycles subject to cancellation for traffic offences, lack of safety equipment such as lights and reflectors, etc. The Town Police could also visit the schools and instruct the pupils on safety. School Patrols and other similar matters.

So you see there is something in this problem for all of us, be we driver, pedestrian, parent or child. Don't just shout that "they," meaning the police or council or teachers or somebody, should do something about it. Do it yourself, or see that it is done. As you hear so often on the radio the life you save may be your own—or your child's.

Luscious-looking librarian: "Sorry, madam, I don't have that book."

You Save Money

DODGE

A PART OF DODGE DEPENDABILITY

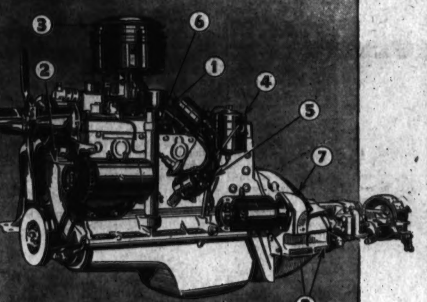

YOU SAVE MONEY every mile you drive with the Dodge simple-design L-Head engine. There are fewer moving parts to wear. Oil filter, floating oil intake, and air cleaners keep carbon and dirt from moving parts to reduce wear. Such "extra" features as four rings per piston, full length water jackets, lightweight alloy pistons and alloy exhaust valve seat inserts, result in savings on gas, oil, and repairs.

Other leading features of the economical Dodge engine are explained on the right. But in many other ways Dodge gives you more for your money.

You could pay much more, and still not get all of Dodge roominess, beauty and ruggedness. Test for yourself the generous head, leg, and elbow room. Compare the "outlook" through the high, wide windshield. Note how easy it is to get in and out. Try out the new Dodge on the road and discover for yourself its flashing performance, driving ease, safety, and riding smoothness.

No matter which way you look at it, your dollars will go further with Dodge... and so will you.

CHECK THESE "EXTRA" FEATURES WHICH ARE STANDARD EQUIPMENT ON THE NEW DODGE. Automatic electric choke. Automatic ignition key steering. Aluminum alloy pistons. Four rings per piston. Low pressure tires. Chain command drive. Oil bath oil cleaner. Oil filter. Floating oil intake. Horseshoe drive. Safety-Rin wheels. Floating Power engine mounting. Chain-tight seats. Full-width defroster vents.

1 L-HEAD OPERATION is quieter, as all moving parts are inside the block. Fewer parts to wear or work loose assure longer life. Simple construction allows easy maintenance.

5 WEATHERPROOF IGNITION SYSTEM gives maximum protection against wear and dirt for dependable all-weather operation. Distributor has a new splash-proof cap. Centre distributor brush has a 10,000 ohm carbon suppressor which allows a wider spark gap setting for better idling and low-speed performance.

6 AUTOMATIC CHOKE. The choke enriches the mixture by automatically reducing the proportion of air drawn through the carburetor during warm-up, to provide easy starting under all weather conditions. Saves fuel by preventing too rich an operating mixture.

7 FLUID DRIVE ON Custom Dodge models lets you drive, relaxed, in high gear most of the time. It is particularly effective on wet pavements, ice or mud, allowing smooth transfer of power without stalling. The Custom Dodge is still the lowest-priced car in Canada with Fluid Drive as standard equipment.

2 FLOATING POWER is the name given to the scientific Dodge method of mounting the engine on the chassis so that engine vibration is not transmitted to the body. Results in smooth, quiet operation and long car life.

3 OIL BATH AIR CLEANER filters the air before it enters the carburetor. By keeping dust out of the engine, it cuts down repairs and lengthens engine life.

4 OIL FILTER of microfine type, filters even the smallest particles of carbon or dirt out of the oil and so reduces wear on bearings and cylinder walls for long, trouble-free engine life.

PLANTING PERENNIALS

September is the month to transplant perennials. Peonies, Iris, Tulips, Bleeding Heart, Lillies, Columbine and Phlox do best when planted in the fall. Roots and bulbs can be brought now from Nurseries. Peonies and Iris after two or three years in one place can be divided and thus more plants obtained. Roots of both these plants must not be planted deeper than 3 inches or they will not do well.

GIVE ALFALFA A CHANCE

There is a danger of winter killing if Alfalfa is pastured down too closely at this time of year. It is best for Alfalfa to go into the winter with 3 to 4 inches of growth. After freeze up Alfalfa is not hurt by foraging although the stock may be if steps are not taken to protect them from frost.

DIGGING GLADS

Gladiolus corms can be left in the ground until a severe frost has damaged the tops. Dry the corms well before storing in a cool dry place. They must not freeze or must not be wet in storage or they will rot.

KILL THE SPROUTS

A chemical by the name of Boraport is now available to retard the growth of sprouts on stored vegetables. In warm basements sprouts take much longer to appear and in cool basements no sprouts will appear till late spring. We ought to use more of these scientific discoveries. They say good dividends when used as recommended by the manufacturers.

VEGETABLE STORAGE

Following the first killing frost, vegetables should remain in the ground from seven to ten days, advises P. McClellan, Field Crops Branch, Alberta Department of Agriculture. This allows them to ripen and mature before being removed for storage.

Root crops can be successfully stored in most homes but it is suggested that a small room be used, preferably insulated, and as far away from the furnace as possible. The best type of floor is dirt or brick. If the floor is concrete it should be covered with sand, sawdust or peat moss and sprinkled with water at regular intervals. This will maintain the humidity of the room which is essential for successful storage. The temperature of the room is also an important factor. It should never be allowed to drop below freezing or to rise above 40° F. 36° - 50° F is a satisfactory temperature for storage purposes.

Vegetables such as carrots and beets may be stored in separate bins in moist sand or sawdust. Potatoes can be stored in open bins. Onions can be stored on shelves in shallow containers. Storing cabbage with a few inches of the stem left on will aid in preventing splitting of the head.

Vegetables are living things and they should be handled as such at all times. Handle carefully and prevent bruising. Live set as ports of entry for disease organisms and thus affect the quality of the stored product.

To her unexpected callers the suburban hostess said: "I must apologize for our cluttered up lawn. Fred was going to rake it yesterday afternoon, but, instead, he went over to the neighbors and drank beer."

"That's right," dear, her husband admitted, uncomfortably, "but if you stop raking up the past, my dear, I'll promise to stop passing up the rake."

First Artist—"Well, old man, how's business?"

Second Artist—"Oh, splendid! Got a commission this morning from a millionaire. Wants his little children painted very badly."

First Artist (pleasantly)—"Well, my boy, you are the very man for the job."

PREPARING THE PERENNIAL BORDER FOR WINTER

Preparation of the perennial border for winter is a task with a general clean-up. The Experimental Station at Beaverlodge, Alta., has found that the top growth, having served its purpose, should be cut off as close to the root as possible without inducing injury. It has been found in certain cases that mice will find winter protection in vegetation that has not been removed.

In peonies, botrytis blight is usually harboured overwinter in stalks at crown level and spores are produced with the advent of wet weather in the spring. Because the spores spread to the leaves, good sanitation is essential. This includes removal of trash about the base of the stalks, as well as the stalks, and burning it.

Now that the border is receiving its annual overhauling, this is the time to make amendments. Common and old-fashion species are discarded and replaced next spring by specimens in accord with more modern aesthetic inclinations. Old varieties that have yielded well throughout the years are replaced with new and superior varieties; for example, the Pacific Hybrid delphiniums provide a more favorable display than the old varieties which are still common throughout the countryside. Also, the newer introductions of iris having unique color diversity relieve the monotony of the common old blues.

With time, most perennials produce large roots that produce fewer and smaller blooms of a generally inferior quality. Consequently, the roots are divided and the younger portions saved and transplanted. The centre is discarded, but, if valuable, may be saved for further propagation. Most perennials should be divided every two to three years. Certain ones, such as iris, peonies and oriental poppies, are divided in fall while division of roots in spring is successful with most species. In regions of alternate freezing and thawing, plants are heaved from the soil with consequent winter killing. These sudden changes of temperature may be overcome by mulching with straw, hay, or brush after the ground has frozen. Hay and brush are preferred because of their freedom from weed seeds. Where snow cover is adequate, mulching in northernmost regions, mulching may be unnecessary.

SERIOUS LOSS

As much as 30 per cent of pullet eggs are lost in the range, according to the Marketing Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. This is a loss, the Service declares, the poultry industry cannot afford.

It used to be that pullets—timid creatures that like to hide away their first nests—were housed before they began to lay. Now, things have changed. With earlier hatching they may be laying two months or more before being housed. The Service advises provision of outdoor nests near range shelters.

"It's hard enough to get eggs," the Service states. "Their care and conservation is important. Any loss of eggs, the end product, is deplorable."

ERADICATION OF VOLUNTEER SWEET CLOVER

The fear of sweet clover becoming a weed has been dispelled with the advent of 2,4-D. Nevertheless, this chemical cannot remove sweet clover from crops with the same facility as it does elsewhere or certain of the mustard. Tests have shown that 5 and 6 ounces, acid equivalent per acre of the ester of 2,4-D are necessary for the effective elimination of second-year sweet clover. This is true only when the legume is treated at its most susceptible stage. Sweet clover forms a rosette-like head when it resumes growth the second year. Following this there is a period of great activity in the growth processes of the plant as it extends its stalks. This is the vulnerable stage. Treatment made later than when the legume is eight inches high may result in only partial killing of the stalk followed by a thick regrowth from buds below the killed portion, says A. C. Gardner of the Dominion, experimental station, Beaverlodge, Alta.

Volunteer plants of sweet clover in grass crops are most readily killed by 2,4-D when the clover is six inches high. At this time the grasses have not reached their heading stage, while the weeds are caught at a vulnerable period. Second-year sweet clover in grain, however, may have to be treated when the stage of the grain warrants. In this instance, it is also essential that the dosage rate be kept to a minimum otherwise injury may result to the cereal crop.

Though evidence suggests that red clover and alfalfa are somewhat less susceptible to 2,4-D than sweet clover it is doubtful if this chemical can be effectively used to remove the latter from these crops. This would be particularly true where the growing season is short and where delay in the maturity of alfalfa and clover seed cannot be tolerated.

Two friends were on a train which was held up. As the hold-up men came through the train taking cash and valuables from the passengers, one of the men became more and more nervous. Finally, with the robbers only a few seats away, he put his hand in his pocket and drew out a bill and held it out to his friend.

"Here, Sam," he said, "here's that $10 I owe you."

If you want to live a happier life try using the advice you give to your friends.

A Personally Conducted Tour

A Boston couple stopped at Gettysburg, and were taken on a tour of the battlefield by a salty old guide from Alabama. He showed them a field where two thousand Southerners had been mowed down, a ridge where six New England regiments had bitten the dust, and the site of a barn where hundreds of Yankee soldiers had been captured by Northern scouts.

"Say there," interrupted the Bostoner, angrily. "Didn't the North ever win a single skirmish?"

The Alabamian guide shifted his cud of tobacco in his mouth and said, "No, siree! Not while I'm conductin' this tour!"

WHOOPING COUGH STILL MOST SERIOUS OF ALL INFECTIOUS DISEASES

Whooping cough remains the most serious infectious disease Canadians have to deal with. It is stated by Dr. C. S. Anglin of Toronto's Hospital for sick children in an article—"Be Wise—immunize!"—in the current National Immunization Week number of the magazine Health.

"There are more cases and deaths from whooping cough each year than from diphtheria, scarlet fever, and polio-myelitis combined," writes Dr. Anglin. "This disease is caused by a germ that grows in the throat and upper air passages, producing irritation and thick mucus which leads to severe coughing and choking spasms with difficulty in breathing. Because of the smaller size, these may be weeks and months of prolonged coughing spells which disturb the patient as well as everyone else in the house."

"Fortunately, there is immunization available against whooping cough. In about 50 per cent of children immunized there appears to be complete protection, and in the remaining group, if the disease develops, it is so mild that it is not as serious a problem."

The author states that prevention of diseases has become one of the major aims of the medical profession, and that the adage "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" applies well when one considers many of the diseases still prevalent throughout the world.

He discusses the continued need for vaccination against smallpox, stating that it is usually recommended that children be vaccinated before one year of age. There is less chance of reaction during this period. He also says it is wise to re-vaccinate every five to seven years.

Dr. Anglin writes that diphtheria has been almost as serious as smallpox in the past. It is a disease caused by a germ that spreads rapidly from one person to another. Also, some people who are in good health may carry the germ in the nose and throat and spread the disease without knowing what a menace they are to the people with whom they come in contact. Most diphtheria deaths occur among infants and young children.

Mrs. Blinks of London: "Well, this is good news, now. My daughter's written to say she's got a regular job and is about to start a film career at 'Oilywood'."

The Brady Cooling System Cleaning

LENGTHENS THE LIFE OF YOUR CAR, TRUCK OR TRACTOR

Leo's Service Station is pleased to announce that they have installed the latest and most modern machines to clean automotive cooling systems. The Brady Machine. A mild 3% acid solution harmless to metal is pumped through the cooling system under pressure, bringing out scale, dirt and grease. The Brady engineers proved the efficiency of their machine by the following procedure.

Our engineers made an interesting experiment, they took four new cars and ran them between fifty and sixty thousand miles under difficult conditions, such as operating in the desert and in the mountains. Two of these cars were cleaned at regular intervals and two of them were not cleaned at all. The two automobiles that were cleaned at the end of this period were in excellent mechanical condition in every respect. In fact, compression was still normal in all cylinders. The two automobiles that were not cleaned were almost completely burned out and required general overhauling. This general overhauling brings up another interesting condition that invariably develops. This condition is, as follows:

When a car is overhauled, cylinder walls are rebored and oversize rings put in. So we now have a condition where a motor is what we call tight, and as a result generates more heat than it would do under ordinary circumstances. If the scale that has been developed over miles of driving is still in the engine block and it invariably still is, because until the Brady Machine was developed there was no practical method of cleaning scale from out of the engine blocks, therefore our common sense again tells us that we are even more prone to overheat in this overhauled car, and the car owner has wasted his money, because the same condition that originally caused such increased wear of the parts is still present. An overhaul would be necessary again in a relatively short time.

This formation of scale in an automobile could so almost be compared to a cancer that automotive engineers still stipulate as follows:

1. Cooling systems should be cleaned every five thousand miles or twice a year.

2. 75 per cent of mechanical failure in an automotive motor can be directly or indirectly attributed to defective cooling.

If therefore cooling systems were properly cleaned at regular intervals the expense of car maintenance would be brought down to a minimum, and the life of the automobile increased tremendously.

It becomes very apparent that it is a common mistake to just think of cooling system cleaning in the cases of automobiles that are overheating so badly that they start to boil. It should be apparent that all automobiles are overheating in spots due to the reasons set forth above and that proper cooling system cleaning is as important a piece of maintenance as the changing of oil and grease.

By pressure and chemical action the BRADY SYSTEM pumps liquid through the cooling system and does a thorough cleaning job. Under pressure and constantly in motion, the mildly acid liquid (not harmful to any metal) thoroughly cleans dirt, sludge, grease and scale.

NEWS NOTES from your Diat. Home Economist

Shelia M. Forrest, Editor

Belle Homemakers:

Now while the weather is still fairly nice seems like a good time to do that fall housecleaning—just as soon as the harvesting is done any way. Two big jobs never miss a week. It is a good idea to get the outside windows cleaned and the storm windows on before it turns too cold.

If you are going to clean your rug and upholstered furniture you might be interested in a fairly simple method of doing it. First of all dust thoroughly. If you have a vacuum cleaner this isn't too difficult but a thorough brushing with a good stiff brush will do just as well.

Test the danger of water on color of rug by rubbing a moist cloth on a small spot. This applies to upholstery too and most good quality materials will stand this test.

Prepare a heavy lather: 1 qt. hot water and 1/2 cup of soap flakes—noil strong. Cool solution and let jelly then beat the soap jelly into a lather. Apply suds with soft, clean brush. Work evenly over a small section. Work only as large an area as can be quickly rinsed. Rinse by wringing out cheese cloth and wipe off all soap. Rinse by wringing out clean warm water and wipe as dry as possible. Leave no soiled streaks between parts washed. Let dry thoroughly before putting into use. Spread the rug outside if possible to dry.

Very large rugs are difficult to manage and a big table will make the work easier.

If there are grease spots on the surface especially on the chesterfield where oil from hair comes in contact with the surface, moisten cheesecloth with 1 or 2 drops of carbon tetrachloride—a liquid available from your drug store and gently apply to the grease stain. Rub lightly and use least possible.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

by Don Graham

Why is it that some people accomplish big things and get what they want out of life, while others just drift and wait for things?

Perhaps the most important single answer to this question can be found in the lives of all great men. In every case you will find that the man of achievement is a man of determination. When he decides on an objective, he bends every effort to reach it. Nothing deters him.

Edison experimented with more than 6,000 filament materials before he discovered one that met his requirements. This dramatic example shows how persistent we may have to be in order to attain our goal.

The trouble is, most of us are too easily discouraged. But if we accept difficulties as challenges to our ability and determination we will develop new powers. And when discouragement sets in, we must fight that, too.

So add "the will to win" to your technical knowledge, skill and hard work. You'll triple your chances of success!

Life insurance agents know we all tend to put off doing things—even when we realize that we ought to do them. Today thousands of families enjoy security because agents continued to remind them of their need for life insurance.

Kitchen

... Kinks

Cool, crisp fall days are here again and the markets abound with a host of vegetables. One of the most beautiful is the eggplant, which is used in a variety of ways. The name suggests, the vegetable is somewhat egg-shaped and is usually three to five inches in diameter. Good quality eggplant is generally prepared by peeling, slicing, dipping in egg and crumbs or a batter and then frying until a golden brown. However, it may be baked, either plain or stuffed, or boiled either alone or in combination with other fall vegetables.

It has been said that any non-leafy vegetable, except eggplant, is likely to be some kind of squash. The most famous member of this large squash family is the pumpkin which is used primarily for making pies. The other members of the family are divided into two main groups—summer and winter squashes, the latter ripening in the late autumn. Vegetable marrow, Patis-pan squash, Crookneck and Pamp (Danish or Acorn) squashes are the most common varieties available in Canada at this time of year. Later on, winter squashes make their appearance. They have yellow flesh, are usually larger, firmer and more mature than the summer varieties. Hubbard squash is probably the best known variety of the winter squashes.

Here are some recipes featuring eggplant and squash which have been tested and approved by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Scalloped Egg-Plant

1 medium egg-plant
1 cup melted fat or salad oil
Salt to taste
2 medium onions, chopped (1 cup)

4 cups chopped, peeled tomatoes

Dash of pepper
1 cup grated cheese
Pare egg-plant thinly, cut in 1/4 inch slices. Brush each slice with melted fat or oil and season with salt. Fry until just tender, turning once. Fry chopped onion and garlic in the remaining fat, add the tomatoes, the 1 teaspoon of salt and pepper to taste. Simmer, stirring frequently, until thickened, about 25 minutes. Arrange egg-plant, cheese and tomato sauce in 1 hour. Yield: six servings.

Egg Plant Creole

Wainwright, Alberta

EATON'S

1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 large tomatoes (peeled and chopped)
2 red OR 2 green chopped canned tomatoes
1/2 cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons grated cheese
Pare slices and dice egg-plant in 1-inch pieces. Cook for 3 minutes in a small amount of boiling, salted water. Drain. Fry onion and green pepper in frying dish. Melt shortening, add green pepper and onion and fry for 3 minutes. Add flour, salt and sugar, blend well. Add tomatoes and continue cooking for 5 minutes. Pour the tomato sauce over the egg-plant and top with bread crumbs which have been oiled with the grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. for 20 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Baked Squash Creole

3 medium acorn squash
2 tablespoons butter
2 large tomatoes OR 2 cups canned tomatoes
1 large green pepper, shredded (1/2 cup)
2 small onions, chopped (1/2 cup)
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1 1/2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 cups milk or cream
2 tablespoons flour

Wash squash, cut into halves and remove seeds and pithy portion. Cut a thin slice from each end of squash to allow them to fit flat. Season each half with salt, pepper and paprika and dot with butter. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, melt butter, add peeled and sliced tomatoes, shredded green pepper and chopped onion and cook until the vegetables are tender, about 15 minutes. Add the teaspoon of salt, the 1/4 teaspoon of paprika and the 1 1/2 tablespoons brown sugar. Strain the juice from the vegetables and add sufficient milk or cream to make 2 cups liquid. Mix the flour to a smooth paste with a little cold water and stir into the liquid. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce is thick and smooth. Add vegetables and fill the partially baked squash halves with the mixture. Return to the oven and continue baking until squash are tender, about 1/2 hour. Yield: six servings. If desired, garnish with strips of crisp bacon.

DUKES INCLUDED, BRITONS APPROVE HEALTH SERVICE

Medical Official of Plan Says 95 Per Cent Registered, Lists Benefits to Date

London.—(Reuters)Members of some of Britain's most aristocratic families are among the 95 per cent of the country's population who have registered under the National Health Service.

"I know of one duke who has enrolled his whole family," Dr. J. A. Charles, deputy chief medical officer of the health ministry, told the Chartered Society of Physiotherapists annual congress here.

But Dr. Charles refused to divulge the duke's identity because the service maintained confidential relations between doctor and patient.

A London newspaper has reported that the entire royal family joined the scheme while at their Scottish residence at Balmoral Castle, Buckingham Palace, refused to confirm this report on the grounds that "it is entirely a private matter."

The National Health Service, which is now being "observed" by 15 United States congressmen, has proved to be popular beyond all expectations, Dr. Charles said.

Every day half a million prescriptions are dispensed. Five million pairs of spectacles have been provided and eight million people have presented themselves for dental treatment since the plan started.

Cost of the service is estimated in the present financial year to be £32,000,000 ($719,000,000) in England and Wales—about two shillings and one penny (12 cents) per head per week.

Industrial Savings

"Maybe out of this enormous scheme there is the opportunity of having here and there but one must see this expenditure against a background of the $200,000,000 lost to industrial production by illness," Dr. Charles said.

The cost of maintaining an occupied bed in hospital was £2 10s. (£28.50) per week in 1947 compared with 64 shillings before the war and 24 shillings at the turn of the century.

The ministry of health gave these additional statistics.

Wigs supplied under the health scheme—2,000. There have been requests for 9,000. Each person receives two, meaning that 4,000 patients are required them.

Artificial legs—6,000 ordered, 3,228 supplied. Repairs—401 ordered, 509 carried out.

Surgical boots—18,541 ordered, 7,556 supplied. Other surgical appliances—£18,000 ordered, $18,000 supplied. Wheel chairs—2,848 ordered, 959 supplied. Artificial eyes—4,034 ordered, 3,008 supplied.

AN IMPORTANT ORGAN

The skin is an important organ which throws off waste products and regulates body heat. It needs to be kept in good condition by cleansing, airing and friction. After heavy exertion, if you can't have a shower, have a good rub down with a wet, then dry towel. This helps the pores keep healthy and prevents unpleasant body odors. Regular cleansing helps keep the skin in good condition. Make sure your children have the cleanliness habit.

FIRST ONES STILL HERE

All the modern conveniences we use in use today belie the fact that this is still a young country. What brings it home to you most forcefully is the number of people you meet who pioneered this area.

What The Sea Cadets Are And Do

The Sea Cadet Movement of the Navy League of Canada is not new. Since 1884 public men have contributed without remuneration a large part of their spare time for promotion of Navy League work. The movement was sponsored to help direct boys and young men along the road to better citizenship.

For this reason they organized in schools, auditoriums, etc. the first Sea Cadet Corps. Boys were recruited to train them in certain skills of the sea and the qualities of good citizenship.

Boys are officially of age for Cadets if they are between the ages of 14 and 18. Small Corps usually have a junior group of boys 12 to 14 years.

When a boy first joins he is given an application form to be filled in and signed by his parents. He is then put in what is called a Tender division for a few weeks to acquaint him with the various procedures found in the Corps. If he puts in good attendance for a given period of time he is then issued with a uniform. Cadets are required to be on parade regularly because a complete uniform costs a lot of money and a boy who is given one of those is expected to wear it at proper times.

Once he has finished the preliminary work he goes on now with Able Cadet training usually taken in company with others of his own age. In our Corps we usually run the boys in two divisions, Junior and Senior. For class each of these is split into smaller units.

He will take classes in Bonds and Hitches (Knitting) practising using Able Lanes and Buzzers. His Seamanship varies from Traditions of the Navy, History of the Navy, to anchors cables, running lights, sounding, hoisting the compass, general navigation. His practical comes when he goes to camp.

He will do squad drill, learn how to handle a rifle and a Bren gun. He will have organized games. He will have the opportunity to get his St. John Ambulance badge. Of course this goes over the yearly period and the evening is usually run in three periods one of which is a games period.

A typical evening follows:

7:30—Hande, Fall in.

Inspection, announcements, etc.

Hands to Classes (Signals, Knots, Boxing)

7:55—Stand Easy (break period)

8:00—Hands to Classes (same classes but different divisions)

8:30—Hands change classes

8:50—Evening Quarters.

The Duty Watch remains to clean the deck. The Quartermaster has to see that all lights are out and that the Ship's Log is up-to-date.

Confidential records of the boys skill and classes he has taken and any courses he has passed are kept. In order to become a Leading Cadet or Petty Officer the boy must take exams set by the Area Officer of Cadets, Lt. Cdr. R. Coulson R.C.N.R.

The Cadet can win the signal badge for which the Navy also awards proficiency money. He can earn his St. John Ambulance badge and other Navy badges as the Bugler or Bandman.

In the summer he has an opportunity to go to the Coast and put all his theoretical seamanship to practical use when he sails whalers, dingies and cutters. He learns how to row properly is given Red Cross swimming instruction and also has a good time by the sea.

All in all the life of a boy 14-18 now a days is a wonderful thing. The boys of this period have opportunities their parents never had and training that should fit them into our democratic way of life. In a democratic country the rights of the individual are of primary importance—but for a democratic country to be successful, its citizens must learn self-discipline. Sea Cadet training stresses this aspect of character. Once a boy realises that he has certain responsibilities as well as privileges and is trained to fulfil these responsibilities he is on the road to becoming a better Canadian.

The Sea Cadet Movement sponsored by the Navy League of Canada, by developing the characteristics of cleanliness, honesty, self reliance, self-assurance, self discipline and the spirit of cooperation, help a boy to become a finer Canadian in the world of tomorrow.

You boys of Wainwright are urged to join and make something of your life, have good comradeship and live a club to go to instead of the street corner or the juke box.

Clerk: "Please, sir, I'd like next week off, if it's convenient."

Boss: "Oh, you would eh? What's up?"

Clerk: "Well, my girl friend's going on her honeymoon and I'd kinda like to go with her."

You may keep yourself safe from fire but not from an evil companion.

KINSMEN PLAN TO RAISE $50,000 FOR SWIM POOL

The Vermilion Kinsmen club has begun a plan to raise $50,000 for the purpose of building a swimming pool in Vermilion.

It is expected that all organizations and clubs in town will be called upon to support this worthy effort because it is a community project which calls for co-operation in every detail.

Though plans have been drawn up but it is not possible to have an exact estimate of cost because construction will probably not begin until the spring of 1951. A scale model of the proposed pool will soon be on display in one of the store windows.

The citizens of Vermilion and district may feel sure now that the Kinsmen have definitely undertaken the project that it will be carried out and completed with the least possible delay and the Kinsmen are certain that the support of everyone is solidly behind them in this mammoth undertaking.

"RED PLUSH" by Guy MacDermot
Arthur, of Arthur Moorhouse and company in the Candorians because he was the first to leave the farm in Arshere thought of himself as the head of the family. Warm-hearted Bel agreed, and treated her husband's relatives with a mixture of affection and domination that exasperated her mother. As old Mrs. Barrowfield often assured herself, she would be no younger parent if she were blind to her child's faults. And to "high-faloots" was one of Bel's worst ones.
Phoebe, the little half-sister was avid for experience. There was a strange, impersonal quality to her character which worried her. It is not a nice thing, really, to feel quite cold when people expect you to feel glad, or sorry, or excited about something. A lovely creature she was, with her slanting Highland eyes and her jet-black hair. She had a deep, unawakened capacity for passion: in the blinding winter sunshine of Vienna she had seen a new life which was to contain unexpected, radiant joy.
David was the one with natural social gifts. He was attractive and lovable. He was prosperous, his bearing was one of remote, distinguished shyness. David was definitely making his way.
Where would Sophia have been if Arthur hadn't brought her to Glasgow and turned her into a lady? Instead of washing out milk pails at Leigh Farm she was happily married to William Butler, who in a moment of wild abandon (for William) had made her a formal proposal at a church function. Gay, young David once described William as a fat, hairy man who stood. Mary had come up next. Mary who was beautiful, placid, and to danger of becoming a saint. She was married to Basil George McAlmair. If ever a stomach was made to support, she obtained of office. If ever shoulders were made to carry municipal emblems, these belonged to George McAlmair.
Mungo, the eldest, stayed on the farm. He was an honest Arshere farmer, his manner had no gentilities, but he had a natural breeding and dignity, and his polite suggestion a part of himself. In the end, when his socially ambitious relatives wished to make an impression, they casually mentioned Mungo.
Affectionate, ambitious, human, and unpredictable, these people have been created lovingly and left to behave according to their natures.
"FOR GOODNESS' SAKE"
By Nancy Jones
Nancy Jones was the daughter of an Elder of the Kirk, and ministers wandered in and out of her parents' home as if it were their own. It was perhaps only natural that in the end she should have married a parson, but it was surely prophetic of her future independence that the young minister she chose to marry was a Methodist. She had dreams of calling her first-born son John Knox, with the John in honour of John Wesley. Then, when Church Union came, the son, who was born in the year of the Union, came dangerously near, being named Edgemoor Chown.
It seems natural to suppose that the family in which she grew up, although reared on Calvin and the Shorter Catechism, were very much alive, and that although a good many things were happening in the world beyond of which they were only dimly aware, nothing happened in their own world that they were not fully aware of and deeply involved in. Nancy Jones has carried into her life as a Minister's wife all the old set for living, together with a lively eye for the incongruous and the humorous. Little has escaped her eye or ear, and she has let down the facts, with her comely, in such a way that anyone who has ever known a minister or his wife, let alone ever been a minister or his wife, will read and relish. This is a high-spirited book, full of laughter and irony, and yet everywhere warm with compassion. One would be right in supposing that the parish gets a pretty vivid picture of the Manse through the pages of this sprightly book; it is also likely to be true that the parish will get a remarkably lifelike picture of the rank and file of any parish, that is to say, of themselves—the people.
Better give a shilling than long hair a crown.
Life is what we make it.
An ounce of discretion is worth a pound of wit.
He that bows above his height may have chips in his eyes.
More attention should be directed to the problem of pulmonary tuberculosis to the aged, which is often a passive process with a high proportion of sputum-positive cases. The onset is insidious and the symptoms are commonly ascribed to old age.

Municipal Doctor Plans Are Progressing Well

After some discussion, it was suggested that the cost of this be ascertained, the delegation also being told that the project could be shared by the Village of Maradeau.

Mr. A. J. Rugg interviewed the council on several matters, among them being the district meeting at Scott, west control program and the intention of the Dominion Department of Agriculture to declare this municipality a T.B. restricted area. Referring to the latter, it appears that the department will be getting this done in the very near future.

PARADISE VALLEY

Mr. E. Cutts of the inspector's staff of the Post Office Department, Edmonton, paid his annual visit to the local post office and also made check of R.R. 1 and 2.

With the splendid weather of the past few weeks harvesting is well on its way to completion. In many cases the yield is very disappointing, potatoes turned out fair with other vegetables in line. The feed for stock will be short and some are cutting down their herds.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Mullen, Stephen and Paul left on Tuesday morning for Edmonton where Mr. Mullen will continue his studies at the University. This is the third summer that Mr. Mullen has been in charge of the United Church at McLaughlin and Paradise Valley and we are all sorry to see them go but we hope with their record here that the powers that be will see fit to again place them in this field.

Mr. and Mrs. Vice had as their guests during the week Mr. V. Haahr, Carol and Jerry of Acadia Valley.

Construction work has started on an addition to the teachers' occupied by C. A. Richardson. A house has been purchased and moved on to the site of the Moyerton School which was destroyed by fire during the summer.

PARADISE VALLEY
 "VALLEY MAIDS" C.G.T.
 The Valley Maids C.G.T. met at the home of Mrs. W. A. Gunn on Wednesday evening Sept. 28th at 7:30 p.m. for a reorganization meeting for the coming year. Mrs. Gunn is the leader again for another year. Mary Baxter and Shirley Gunn are assistant leaders. The following is the executive: President—Audrey Guy, Vice-President—Marlene McDonald, Secretary—Edna Churchill, Treasurer—Beth McLean.

Beatrice Kragness was appointed as press correspondent. Mary Baxter and Shirley Gunn are to help with the singing. The social part of the evening was spent in popping corn and eating cake.

All between the cradle and the coffin is uncertain. It is better to be sure than sorry.

McLAUGHLIN

Well it looks as if "The work is done this Fall", most of the crop is either threshed or combined. Wonder where all the big threshing crews have gone. There is not much of that getting ready for dinner, and the threshers putting in early next morning. Remenber the time when a threshers was a little tin god, and took orders from no man. What a difference to the women these days. Just two or three to cook for instead of anything from six to ten men. O well, time marches on.

"Sleepy Hollow" is "horrifying" just now, news is scarce—except bad news of which there is lots.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. W. Collins Sr. had to be rushed to the hospital. He is detained for a time and we hope to see him around again soon.

Miss Jean Venaroe is behind the counter at Bill Lincoln's. Come and get a cup of tea and a smile at Bill. If you are good he may show you some pretty slick card tricks.

We hear that Mrs. R. H. Parsons is home again after a successful operation in Edmonton. Mrs. Parsons will stay in Lloyd for a time before coming to Sleepy Hollow. The place for rest and quietness.

Mrs. Plum Sr. held a small party to celebrate her birthday. Those present had a nice quiet little time but really enjoyed themselves.

We are sorry to report the passing of another old friend in the person of Mrs. Tom Holt. Mrs. Holt has not been very well for some time and last Monday was taken to the hospital with a heart seizure. Mrs. Holt passed away a short time after. She leaves four sons, Donald, John, Harold and Raymond and a daughter, Mrs. Phyllis, who lives in Australia. Both Mrs. Holt and Mrs. Phelps are old timers to this district. Our sympathies go to those left behind.

Words of Wisdom: The greatest undeveloped territory in the world, lies under your hat.

We are sorry to hear of the sickness of Mrs. Jim Beggs who is at present in hospital. Her friends are wishing her a speedy recovery.

George Elliot, Charlie McKay and Sherman Duff had gone on their annual hunting expedition. Last time they went astray somewhere or other, goodness only knows where they will land this time, but we are hoping for the best. Part of their equipment is an alarm clock, what for well nobody knows but it is supposed that it is to keep the game get fully awake before being hunted.

Helder who gave a pleasant selection. Mrs. F. Tindall gave a piano recital. "You Can't Be True Good". Then there was a small quiz show of three questions. And that brought on the gifts. Evelyn Helder read the cards. Ethel Wright, Grace Watson, Ruth and Stute Helder helped out strings and place the gifts. Winnie thanked everyone in a few well chosen words. After which a lovely lunch was served. That brought the afternoon to a close.

Your companions are your mirror and show you yourself.

Rig No. 1 of the Husky Oil Co. Ltd. have moved up from Lloydminster, to the G. W. White farm, 3 1/2 miles North of Ribstone, and that property is rapidly becoming a hive of industry. On paying a visit to the site on Monday, our reporter found at least 13 men under the able supervision of J. E. Watson hard at work setting up the drilling outfit, which towered some sixty feet, and with a large number of lengths of pipe on hand.

Here the men are preparing to drill for oil which rumor has it is one of the best prospects for some time, and on enquiring from Mr. Watson, we are informed that actual drilling was to begin Tuesday of this week. The jovial manager expressed his opinion that they would be down some 1,000 feet within the next three or four days. The crew is a branch of Husky Oil and Refining Co. Ltd., of Wainwright. Living quarters have not been too easy to find, and the men are being housed at Chauvin for the present.

Our reporter found the men all in excellent spirits and under expert supervision, felt they could really "get places" at the present site. On enquiring further from the "boss" of the crew, we learned that only a very small percentage of the workers were American, and that the head of the company was Alberta born Oles E. Nelson.

We hope to have further news of this drilling project next week.

CLIFFE

A double surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Graham, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Graham and Mr. and Mrs. Stan Graham the occasion being their wedding anniversary. Since this was to be a double celebration, and in order to keep the secret in the bag from both parties, it was told to Mr. and Mrs. Graham, the surprise was for Mr. and Mrs. Stan Graham, and vice versa. Both parties were consistent with the secret of getting a surprise for the other. In spite of the two special cakes and coronas which centred the table, now were the wisest until Max Campbell called upon both honored couples to present them with gifts. On behalf of relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Graham related a portable radio, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Graham with a couple of silverware. The evening was spent in singing old time hymns, followed by contests and games with Mrs. A. Wells and Mrs. R. Johnson as M.C.'s. A beautiful lunch brought the pleasant evening to a close. Mr. and Mrs. Stan Graham left on Saturday for their home in Vernon, B.C. and we wish them God's speed on their journey.

Mr. Cartnell of Gleichen, Alta., a Salvation Army Captain, gave a message at the Manitou Gospel Mission on Sunday. We welcome back Mrs. Lloyd Hansen and baby boy from the local hospital. Elmo and Malcolm Graham witness-

Mr. Swanson, who is a cousin of Mrs. Harry Forster liked this part of Canada very much. He was very sincere in his appreciation of the many fine people he had met while here and grateful for the kindness of those with whom he and Jimmie had the pleasure of hunting. They hope to return next year.

On Sunday, Sept. 25th, the Swansons accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Forster motored to Cold Lake to visit his uncle and cousins there.

A LEGEND OF ALBERTA
THE CRAZY GABIN

The old house where Silas Miller used to mend shoes and carry on his trade of tinker may still be seen, but time has crumbled its walls and disintegrated it until today it is little more than a tumble-down shack. The wind plays through the large opening in the roof, and in winter snow drifts in through a hundred crevices. During the summer months the place is overrun by tall, rank weeds of many species.

When the old tinker passed away—if one could call a small cabin and a there was none to inherit his property his uncle and cousins there.

Even if there had been relatives to claim the humble home with its few pieces of poor furniture, it is doubtful whether any one of them would have cared to occupy the place, for even in the old tinker's time the shack was a sort of crazy house where noises of every description could be heard nightly. To such sounds the tinker paid little heed, indeed, there were those who believed the old duffer actually enjoyed life under such a roof. And some folks went so far as to say that old Silas Miller, with all his pious exterior, was at heart a scoundrel of the first order, that he had fled the U.S.A. and come to Alberta after murdering a fellow being in cold blood.

Whether there was any truth in certainly Silas was a queer one, a fellow these accusations we cannot say; but few people just didn't take to him. When they didn't, they left him alone.

And Silas Miller didn't care what people thought about him. He was perfectly happy, or seemed to be, with the company of his faithful dog "Buff."

About the dog he was often heard to remark:

"Why, take my Buff there. What that dog knows a heap more than most folks here in this settlement."

When the neighbors questioned Silas about the noises heard in the cabin, he would laugh loudly and pipe up:

"To be sure, there be noises. But that ain't anything. I suppose every home has its own peculiar sounds, only mine are caused by the spirits. Ye see, I always loved the company of spirits; and, if I say so myself, the spirits and the tinker get along well together, so they do."

This kind of talk led folks to believe the old fellow was partly brained.

But not everybody in the district shared this opinion. No, indeed. Some believed he was an honest tinker by day and a collaborator of the Devil by night. Otherwise, why would the man live in a haunted house and apparently enjoy doing so?

In time old Silas went the way of all flesh; and when they had buried him, the men of the district used to take turns at sitting up in the shack to hear the doings which went on about midnight.

And those who sat and listened heard the sound of saw and hammer, heard the clank of tin as it was moved about the work-bench or shaped into a bucket. Almost every night the same things went on under the roof of the tinker's shack, but never did anyone see or hear the workman. This elusive creature always kept hidden somewhere in the background.

One old farmer of the district claimed that one night, when he was passing down the road to visit a neighbor, he distinctly saw the ghost of the tinker moving about the house. He called out to him, but at that moment the thing disappeared.

Those happenings took place many years ago, but even today there are folk who stoutly maintain that on certain nights they still hear the strangest noises when they pass by the old, old shanty.

YOUR DAILY DIET

Everyone's sense of well-being and his ability to work effectively depend to some extent on a nutritious diet. If we want to be healthy and strong, if we want to feel right, we must eat right. Eating right means eating a variety of foods which should include each day milk, fruit, vegetables, cereals and meat.

SLEEP COMBATS FATIGUE

Most adults should not cut their average sleeping time below eight hours if it can possibly be avoided. Jumpy nerves, loss of weight and lack of stamina are common results of too little sleep. You'll sleep better and awaken more refreshed if you open the windows wide and let in plenty of cool, fresh air. Remember, sleep combats fatigue, the enemy of the working man. Take all the sleep you need.

DIET IN THE DECLINING YEARS

As a person grows older he usually becomes less active and has less need for energy foods. But he still needs the same amount of foods containing vitamins, minerals and proteins. The elderly person needs foods that are easily digested and some senior citizens get along better on smaller meals with mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks. Good feeding does not happen by chance. Make sure your family is getting the proper foods for health.

Johnny, who had been taken to the country for the first time, saw a spider spinning a web between two tall reeds. "Father," he called, "come and see this bug putting up a wireless!"

WORLD OF WHEAT

SURPLUSES AND LOW PRICES

Every conceivable experiment has been tried by man throughout the ages to distribute food in a world that always has been and still is hungry, and to prevent temporary unmet needs from developing into permanent shortages. These plans have all failed. At present marketing and distribution is being done by Governments by bulk-buying and selling under International Agreements, with the promise of marketing, however, are beginning to believe that this may not work, and that there may again be temporary burdensome surpluses, and Governments may be unable to prevent prices falling to low levels. The Food and Agricultural Organization are now proposing that the day by day marketing and distribution of grains and other commodities should be done through the regular trade channels, but that an International Commodity Clearing House should be set up which with five billion dollars subscribed by all countries would stand ready to buy up quickly at market prices unmarketable surpluses before they depress prices, and that the organization would then sell these temporary surpluses at greatly reduced prices to certain countries in grave need of food, and which could not afford to buy at regular market prices.

The idea is intriguing and is to be thoroughly discussed by the United Nations in the near future.

THE WORLD OF FOODSTUFFS
France's wheat crop is now officially estimated at 232,305,000 bushels, considerably above previous estimates and 15,800,000 bushels over the 1948 wheat crop of 216,500,000 bushels. The barley crop is estimated at 64,630,000 bushels, compared with last year's crop of 57,150,000 bushels. Oat production is now placed at 215,550,000 bushels, a decrease of 16,140,000 bushels from last year's production. A very poor crop is expected.

Panama's record rice harvest of 1949 is forecast at 2,517,000 bushels, compared with last year's crop of 2,691,000 bushels, and the pre-war average of 1,600,000 bushels.

Mills-Withnell Wedding At St. Mary's Edgerton

St. Mary's Anglican Church, Edgerton, was the scene of a pretty September wedding at 2:00 p.m. on Friday, when Rosemary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Withnell, became the bride of Mr. Donald Mills, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Mills, all of Edgerton district.

Rev. W. D. Ellway performed the ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride looked lovely in a gown fashioned of soft rayon sheer, with shirred empire waist, sweeping skirt and long Bishop sleeves. The neck was embroidered and bead trimmed. Her long satin-embroidered veil held in place by a wreath of white roses, she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and white carnations tied with a white satin bow, with long streamers. Her only jewelry was a string of pearls belonging to her grandmother Withnell of Wainwright.

The bride attendants were Miss Betty Withnell, younger sister of the bride, and Miss Shirley Mills only sister of the groom.

Miss Betty Withnell wore a floor length gown of pale blue sheer and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations, she wore a coronet of blue flowers in her hair.

Miss Shirley Mills chose a floor-length gown of pale blue taffeta and carried a similar bouquet of pink carnations, she wore a coronet of pink flowers in her hair.

Best man was Mr. Harry Kribb, friend of the groom, and acting as ushers were Mr. Jim Withnell and Mr. Tommy Withnell, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. B. Kingston played the music for the wedding and while the register was being signed.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Withnell wore a turquoise blue two piece dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Mrs. Mills, mother of the groom, chose a blue afternoon dress of pale blue with black hat and grey shoes, her corsage was of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a buffet lunch was served to about 25 guests. A three tiered wedding cake centred the dining room table.

The newlyweds left for a short honeymoon trip to Western points.

There was little of the pomp and ceremony of pre-war parliamentary opening in Ottawa recently. But Canada's 21st parliament may go down in history as erecting a milestone in the Dominion's growth to full national autonomy.

Canada's determination to sever the last legal bonds tying control over her sovereignty to the United Kingdom overshadowed other developments on Parliament Hill.

The first of two proposed steps to reach complete autonomy was announced early in the speech from the throne, read by Viscount Alexander, governor-general. The speech said the government will ask for the right to seek from the United Kingdom parliament

FAMILY FACES WINTER IN TENT

Canada's housing problem has reached the ultimate for the Killen family of Trail, B.C. Unable to find a house for themselves and their five children, David Killen and his wife have put up a tent near the highway. They have no conveniences, walk a quarter-mile for water. Temperatures at night have gone as low as 40 degrees. So far township officials have done nothing to provide the family with housing.

ment the right for Canada to amend her own constitution in purely federal matters.

Then Prime Minister St. Laurent sprang a surprise by including in the throne speech a second step—a Dominion-provincial conference to discuss means of reaching agreement on ways to amend the constitution on matters under provincial jurisdiction without the need of resorting to the United Kingdom parliament.

Mr. St. Laurent tabled letters in the Commons that he had sent to the premiers of each of the 10 provinces asking that such a conference be held.

The prime minister indicated that the United Kingdom parliament was anxious for the chance of turning over to Canada complete control in her own affairs.

For two men on Parliament Hill—one in the House of Commons, the other in the Senate—opening day brought special distinction. They were the men elected as speakers of their respective chambers.

The House of Commons elected Ross Macdonald, a 57-year-old lawyer who has been a member of the House since 1935. Native of Toronto, he is a Liberal member for the Ontario constituency of Brantford.

The Senate also named a lawyer to rule over its debates—quiet, conscientious Beauregard, 55, a Liberal from Outremont, Quebec.

Defence Measures

Canada's armed forces and measures to defend Canada were very much in the limelight as the new parliament settled down to business.

With a grim warning that the menace of Communist totalitarianism "continues to threaten the aspirations of men of good will," the speech from the throne gave assurance to the country that the defence needs of the Dominion as a separate nation and as a signatory of the North Atlantic Treaty are being kept under constant review.

The speech stressed that research and development are being carried out to provide the armed forces with the most modern equipment suitable to present requirements.

While opening ceremonies were still on, it was learned that Trade Minister Howe planned to take the government's two top defence and civilian scientists with him to tri-nation talks in Washington. There Canada hopes steps will be taken leading to revival of a formal agreement on exchange of atomic information between Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Stated to accompany the minister are Dr. O. M. Solandt, Chairman of the Defence Research Board and Dr. C. J. Energy Control Board.

Mobility Test

The R.C.A.F. showed it was determined to be ready for a move anywhere in Canada by launching a surprise training operation that sent transport squadrons at Edmonton and Montreal into a whirlwind of activity.

On a signal sent out from R.C.A.F. headquarters here simultaneously to the two central squadrons were ordered to interchange positions and be fully operational in their new stations within 88 hours.

For No. 425 squadron at Dorval and No. 425 at Edmonton it meant a race against time to pack technical stores sufficient to keep the aircraft in operation for the two-week period the flights will be away from their home bases and move a total of some 555 men as well as 15 aircraft.

Airforce headquarters said the scheme was designed to meet the transport command up to a peak of flexibility. Fighter command squadron will face similar tests later. Ultimately, it is planned to have every Canadian fighter squadron in a position to move anywhere on three hours notice to take up defence positions.

Prosperous Economy

A cheering word on Canada's general economic condition was given in the throne speech. Over-all agricultural production was continuing at a high level, and so were private capital investments and employment.

For Canada's ship-building industry and merchant shipping—both suffering a post-war slump—the government promised aid.

Canada is also seeking to obtain coas oats and barley also were below the 1948 figure.

CHRISTMAS SEALS HAVE ARRIVED

Christmas Seal headquarters are humming with activity these days, for the supplies have just arrived from the national office of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association.

Thousands of sheets of gaily colored seals are ready and waiting to be stuffed into envelopes in preparation for the Christmas Seal opening on November 14th.

The 1949 Christmas Seal, which it is hoped the public will use on all Christmas letters and parcels, is one of the most attractive yet designed. The central motif is a dove carrying in its bill a spray of holly. Symbolic of peace and goodwill, the dove is an appropriate emblem for a campaign designed to promote health and happiness.

Advance orders for 1949 seals are already being filled for early mailing to distant points. Christmas Seal headquarters for Edmonton and Northern Alberta are located at 950 - 10th Avenue, Edmonton, where the telephone number is 2182. The campaign for the district is sponsored by the Edmonton Kinmen Club.
